

Arizona Silver Belt.

Thursday, October 10, 1878.

Miscellaneous.

The Treasurer of the United States is now paying silver dollars on current liabilities.

Carroll D. Wright, chief of the Massachusetts Bureau of Statistics, estimates the whole number of unemployed in the United States at 570,000.

Broken in Vermont and routed in Maine, the Republican party is gathering itself up for a grand and desperate rally in Iowa. A mighty effort will be made to save that sanctuary of Republicanism. "The child is dead, the mother is dying," wrote the young physician, touching his first case of obstetrics, "but I have every reason to believe that I will be able to save the old man."

A recent meeting of the citizens of Savannah, Georgia, favored the building of the Southern Pacific Railroad from Yuma to El Paso, and urged their Senators and Representatives in Congress to secure the passage of a bill which would enable the company to proceed at once with the building of the road between these points. The preamble expresses want of confidence in Scott's completing the Texas & Pacific within a reasonable time.

The Greenbackers of Nebraska have one rich character on their State ticket, according to a western paper. He was a member of the Territorial Legislature in 1863, and made himself so prominent by his habit of taking part in everything that came up, and altering it to suit himself, that a resolution was unanimously passed by the afflicted legislators appointing him "a committee of one to revise the Lord's Prayer and amend the Ten Commandments."

The Main election and Butler's inroads upon the Democratic ranks of Massachusetts have shown us the strength of the Greenback movement in New England; and now we have an instance of its strength in a Middle State heretofore supposed to be in favor of hard money and contraction. The Democratic convention of the second district of New Jersey, which on September 11th, not only nominated the Greenback candidate, Hezekiah B. Smith, but substantially adopted the platform which the Greenbackers had put forth in first nominating him.

Years ago when Rock Island (Ill.) was a small village, and its people had lots of fun all to themselves, one of our sober, dignified citizens put his own head under one end of the yoke and a little bull's under the other, to teach the animal how to do useful work. When he found the bull was running away with him down a dirt road, toward a crowd around the country store on Illinois street, he measured sixteen feet at a jump, kept up with the bull, and yelled at the top of his voice: "Here we come, darn our fool souls! Head us somebody." When halted and the yoke was being lifted from his neck, he yelled: "Unyoke the bull! Never mind me, I'll stand."

Ex-Governor Ludington, of Wisconsin, has of late years given himself up to the habit of wearing precious stones in his shirt front. The damsel of the great Northwest eyed his diamonds and bowed down as they stood in adulation afar off. At Madison, last week, Mr. Ludington was jostled by a crowd, his hat knocked down over his eyes, and a touch as soft as that across a maid's cheek fell upon him just below the cravat. The ex-Governor had lost his diamonds. There was a nabob; thousands had gone to the pickpocket's share. After awhile the ex-Governor and a crowd stood in a magistrate's office face to face with the identical thief. The diamonds were on the magistrate's desk. "Are these your diamonds, Governor?" said the Court. "I—I think not," replied Mr. Ludington, who had caught the glance of a little disreputable-looking jeweler. "No, I should say not, too," put in the latter, "for they are paste." The crowd took in the situation and roared—Mr. Ludington's precious stones cost a dollar and a half.

New Mexico News.

From the Grant County Herald.

Frost at Silver City on the 24th. Eighty pupils attend the public school in Silver City.

Weeks & Fresh's ten-stamp mill was loaded on Mariano Barela's train at El Moro, Col., on the 7th ult., for Hillsborough.

A Mr. Morris, from Arizona, became delirious and jumped from the backboard near the Rio Mimbres, and remained in and near the town for thirty-six hours, during which time he lost $1,000 in drafts and some currency. He returned to Silver City and stopped payment of drafts.

Lugians made another raid on Charlie Bottom's herd, near Mangus Springs, and killed four steers.

Reports from the Chiricahua mines are favorable.

August Rodholz, formerly of the Lower Gila, died recently in Tucson, Arizona.

R. V. Newsham and Miss C. E. Johnson were married at Silver City, on the 21st ult.

A boy in charge of stock belonging to Van Smith was jumped by three Indians near Ash Springs. He fired on them and succeeded in reaching camp, one horse missing. Next morning, Jim McDaniels started to recover the horse; saw five Indians; spurred his horse; got ahead of the reds, and brought the lost animal back to camp.

According to the account published in the Mesilla News, Newton Rosecrans came out first best in his street fight with A. J. Fountain, at Mesilla, notwithstanding the fact that the latter had a heavy cane in his hands.

J. C. Cooney, on the Duck Water trail not far from Frisco, saw an Indian mounted on each of his horses. He pursued, and came within 400 yards, when he saw eight Indians in advance of those riding his animals. He fired at the nearest of them, and felled him. Fire was returned from several quarters, which pierced his clothes and hat. On returning to camp, he found it sacked.

Admires Ben Butler.

From the St. Louis Journal.

Gov. Bela Hughes, of Colorado, will be the happiest man in America over Ben Butler's nomination for Governor of Massachusetts—happier than old Ben himself. Bela is as staunch a Democrat as ever lived, but he is one of Butler's warmest and most enthusiastic admirers. He used to be terribly down on Ben; but when he went to Washington and met the old war-horse he fell dead in love with him, and has worshipped at his shrine ever since. "Why, d—n it," said Bela, as he passed through St. Louis on his way home from Washington, "that man Butler is a martyr! There never was a nobler, purer man." Bela dined with Ben one afternoon, and they sat very late over their wine; Ben, in the meantime, stroking Bela's fur all "with the grain." They had stowed away a good deal of champagne when Butler's secretary came in, saying, "General, there are a number of callers in the parlor, who have been waiting a long time to see you." "Who are they?" demanded Butler, gruffly. "Several elegant gentlemen from the East, and two elegant ladies from the East," replied the Secretary. "Well," exclaimed Butler, laying his hand affectionately on Bela Hughes' knee, and throwing his cock-eye over his shoulder in the direction of his secretary, "you tell those elegant gentlemen from the East and those elegant ladies from the East that General Butler is busy with a d—d elegant gentleman from the West!" That made Ben solid with Bela.

Nevada Marriage Ceremony.

From the Reno Gazette.

Judge Richardson doesn't pretend to be a parson, and therefore isn't as well up in the marriage ceremony as the stumpy supporters of a decaying hierarchy are. The young couple stood up before him the other evening, and the judge inquired in a cross-questioning tone of the groom: "Are you a citizen of the United States?" The groom took hold of the waistband of his trousers and tugged, saying, "I voted for Tilden, judge." "Why, James?" faintly exclaimed the blushing creature by his side. "It's a fact, Emmer," protested James, rather indignantly and glaring at the judge. His honor coughed, and demanded, severely: "Do you, sir, as a citizen of Nevada, and a lawful voter of Reno, solemnly declare that you will forsake all other evils and cleave to this one?" I've money to bet on it," responded the groom, growing pale, but placing his arm around the waist of the shrinking bride. "Then," cried the judge, bringing his fist down on the desk, "God has joined you together, and damn the man that puts you asunder. The fee is just what you like to give, young fellow." It was pretty liberal, and the court set them up, and kissed the new wife several times besides.
